Nigger-Doodle-Andy.

O Yankee-Doodle-Andy is the tune we all did once delight in.
'Twill do to fiddle, dance or sing, and just the thing for fighting.
But in these modern times, you see, it comes so nation handy
To change the good old tune we loved,
Nigger-Doodle-Andy.

It seems to suit the curious taste of people we call shoddy,
And shoddy people, now-a-days, embraces everybody.
Old Abe loved jokes and he loved song, and he loved good old brandy,
But better than all this, he loved—Nigger-Doodle-Andy.

He said the many had been 'lost upon the field of battle,
That he had men enough, he knew, to make his cannon rattle,
And with a cabinet like his, composed of men like Andy,
He'd whip the Rebels to the tune, of Nigger-Doodle-Andy.

He had some noted horses out, as e'er emerged from stable,
And with them he would whip the South, that is if he was able;
He had them groomed and highly fed, and trained them all so handy,
They'd bow their necks and curl their tails to—Nigger-Doodle-Andy.

There was Barbridge—'tho' a scrubby nag—Could snore, and cut high capers—his name was often seen, we know,
In all the daily papers—at Saltville, when his shot gave out, he started down Big Sandy,
And as he hoped for old Kentucky, sung—Nigger-Doodle-Andy.

The old wheel horse—called Sherman, went Down South and worked his wonders,
He made the women start and scream With cannon's awful thunders,
He burnt his way, clear to the ocean; On Georgia's plains, so sandy,
And marched his army to the tune of—Nigger-Doodle-Andy.

Ben Butler is a bully beast and 'twas a wondrous pity,
That he should trot around and rule the Crescent City,
With stolen silver plate and spoons, he served ice-cream and candy,
At his own board where darkie maids danced—Nigger-Doodle-Andy.

As Yankee hosts have whipped the South, we'll now see sights, I'm thinking,
For Abolition boys will now at nigger gals be blinking;
They'll take their lubly brides up North and give them pies and candy,
And to their brats will sing the tune of—Nigger-Doodle-Andy.

How I Won the Belle of the Blue-Grass Region.

CONCLUDED.
All things conspired to make our ride an exceedingly pleasant one. The evening was delightful, the road in excellent condition, and my companion was considered one of the best riders in Kentucky.
After riding along for, perhaps, half an hour, laughing and chatting, Kate proposed a race to an old elm, we had both seen often, and which was just three miles distant. At the signal both horses felt the whip, and sprang away like the wind. They were pretty nearly matched, and for fifteen minutes neither of us drew rein, her animal keeping almost neck and neck. But as we neared the old elm, I noticed Kate's horse, which was lighter than mine, began to give out, and I slackened my speed, so as to allow her to beat me to the tree and gain the race.
After resting our horses for a few minutes, while I congratulated her on the speed of her favorite, we turned and rode slowly back toward home.

The meadows, grain-fields and forest were ablaze with the crimson and gold of the setting sun, and the birds flitting out from the deep, shady nooks of the woods, were chirping their songs.

I had not forgotten Charlie Killbrough's mysterious warning, and I held in my horse until twilight should come upon us.

The sun disappeared, and nature's twilight calm was broken, only by the twitter of the birds and our own voices. We soon reached a part of the road which was unusually quiet, and my companion ceased talking and seemed to become suddenly sad. On our left was an impenetrable forest, with underbrush of black and raspberries filling the interstices between the trunks of trees. On our right stretched a large field, from which the grain had recently been cut, leaving nothing to intercept the view over the whole space.

We had reached a point mid-way between the wood that skirted this field, and Kate had not spoken a word for ten minutes, when suddenly she threw up her hands, as if to hide from her sight some object out in the field, and her horse bounded across the road, and against mine, almost unseating me. This was more of a surprise than I was prepared for, but instantly recovering my presence of mind, I seized Kate's bridle, while her horse trembled and plunged so, it was with the greatest effort I could hold him. This all occurred in one-fourth of the time it takes to tell it, and when I had time to look out into the field, to see what had so frightened my companion, there was positively nothing there but the short stubble in which not even a chicken could hide from our view. Kate had dropped hands, and was gazing at a spot in this stubble field, forty or fifty feet from us.

'What is the matter, Miss Kate, what do you see?'

The sound of my voice appeared to recall her, and she turned to me quickly, and asked:

'Did you see nothing there?' pointing to the spot.

'No, nothing but the stubble and certainly there is nothing so formidable looking about that.'

'Do not laugh at me, Mr. Dallson, she said solemnly, I saw something and my horse saw it, but it matters not; we will say nothing more about it now. Our horses are rested; let us ride a little faster.'

We struck our horses and Kate's springing into the middle of the road, dashed off at a rapid gallop; I followed, and in a few minutes after, the horses were delivered into black Tom's hands and we were seated on the porch, laughing and talking, as if nothing unusual had happened.

After supper we again took our seats on the porch, and Kate, without waiting for me mention the singular occurrence, gave me an explanation of it.

'About two years ago, said she, I was riding up the road we came this afternoon; brother Dick was with me; we had been out beyond the tree where we turned back to-day; as we came past the field where my horse was frightened, I saw something which attracted my attention out in the field; the sun had been down for some time, but I could see distinctly as I could in broad day light. I stopped my horse to examine the singular object more closely and to my horror, I saw the head and shoulders of a person suspended in the air, fully three yards from the ground; it was in a stubble-field then, as now, and there was no place about where any one could hide; and yet there was absolutely nothing supporting this head and shoulders of a person as clearly defined as I ever saw in my life, but nothing more; it remained thus for at least two minutes, and then vanished away or sunk into the ground—I could not tell which—as mysteriously as it appeared. I have seen it frequently since, and it is the same head and shoulders, and appears in exactly the same spot. No person has ever seen it but myself, it does not appear to any one else. I can not explain it. I have told you all I know concerning it. I have become almost accustomed to see it, and it no longer frightens me, but I did not expect to see it this afternoon. My horse must see it, for he always acts as he did this afternoon; but it never frightens my brother's horse, or any person's who may accompany me.'

This was the mystery then, and one too, I could not explain to Kate or to myself. She waited for me to reply after she had finished, but I knew not what to say. I admitted at last that it was very strange, and that I believed she actually saw what she had described, and tried for an hour to convince her that it was an optical illusion, and that her horse had been frightened the first time she saw the apparition by her jerking up the reins suddenly as she had done that afternoon, and from association became frightened whenever he came to the spot. She listened attentively to all I said, and then told me, this did not explain any part of the mysterious phenomenon to her mind, and then asked me:

'Do you believe I saw what I described to you?'

Yes, Miss Kate, I answered unhesitatingly; I really believe you saw it, but I can not explain it to you nor to my own mind.'

The sensations I felt that night, while passing that field, were anything but pleasant.

A few evenings after this occurred, I again pressed my suit for Kate's hand, and to my unspeakable joy I was accepted. She then told me that every one of the gentlemen, whom she had rejected, had been at different times her escort, when the apparition appeared to her, and that instead of attempting a scientific explanation of the phenomena, they had invariably treated it with levity and incredulity; and that she had made a vow, that she would never consent to marry any man who did not believe she saw the strange apparition; feeling as she did, that she could not live happily with a person who could not sympathize with her in this hallucination. And thus I won the belle of the blue-grass region.

It is stated on good authority that as many as 25,000 negroes have left the Carolinas and Georgia, going to the further West. So great has been felt to be the loss of this productive industry, that steps have been taken, in some instances to arrest the tide of emigration westward. In Charlotte, North Carolina, a society has been formed by the freedmen to discourage their race from leaving their former homes, and the lands with the tillage of which they have become familiar by a life time of experience.

The authorities of Princetown College are about to elect a victim for the prize of the Jerome medal. A temperance society in Georgia fell through because the members would not give up blackberry wine.

A ROMANCE OF CRIME.—The usual quiet village of Blandville Ky., was disturbed by an incident of great moment the other day, and one which forcibly illustrates the old saying that "murder will out" and "a woman can not keep a secret." About eleven years ago there came to this county, and settled about five miles from this town, a man named Hudson, of South Carolina, in which State he abandoned his wife and three children. One of his neighbors, named Belcher, was the father of two buxom daughters, between the younger one and Hudson, there sprung up an intimacy, which resulted in the seduction of the girl. Nine years ago, this month, Hudson committed suicide, and was found in the garret of his house, hanging by the neck, his knees touching the floor. He must have committed the deed some four or five days before his body was discovered, as the remains had commenced to decay, and one side of his face and ear were much eaten away by the rats. A coroner's inquest was held over the body and a verdict of suicide returned. One of the jurors, however, noticed something like a piece of iron in the ear of the deceased, but did not examine it very minutely, nor did he mention the fact for some time after.

The younger Belcher girl married a man named McNabb, with whom she had since lived very happily, notwithstanding she became a mother in a few months after marriage. The family prospered; the elder sister likewise marrying, and was much respected, none of the neighbors having aught to say against either of the girls. But there was a skeleton in both of the households; and the sisters, as they plodded along the journey of life, were continually harrassed by fears and doubts, each striving in vain to lay the visions which haunted their minds.

A few weeks since, during a fit of despondency, the younger sister divulged to a neighbor the terrible secret which had so long weighed upon her conscience and made her life a torment, it was that herself, her sister and her husband, had murdered Hudson. Her story was, that in company with McNabb and her elder sister, she called upon Hudson, and telling him of her situation, upbraided him with her betrayal. Hudson attempted to laugh away the affair, and for the first time informed her of his being married. This incensed both the sisters and McNabb, all of whom commenced an assault upon him, as had been previously agreed upon in case he refused to render justice to the girl he had so foully wronged. He was easily overpowered, and killed, by driving into his ear a portion of the iron spindle belonging to a spinning wheel. After the murder was accomplished, the body was taken to the loft of the cabin, and left hanging by the neck, as it was found several days thereafter.

The woman to whom this fearful secret was imparted, divulged the facts before the grand jury at the present term of the Circuit Court, who at once found a bill against all of them, and on yesterday the parties were arrested, brought to this town and placed in jail.

The women are both decidedly good looking, but their countenances seem to indicate that they have no hope!

This is one of the most singular cases that has ever come before any court in Kentucky, and shows that oft times "truth is stranger than fiction."

At East Lulworth, Mass., two years ago, a woman lost her wedding-ring while engaged in domestic labors. A few days ago the identical ring was found in a large potato she was peeling. The potato was grown in a field near the house, and probably had its eye on the ring all the time.

A suit was tried at Binghampton, N. Y., last week, in which a lady brought an action for assault and battery against a young man, the accusation being that he kissed her while occupying the same seat in a railroad car, she being asleep at the time, with her head resting on his shoulder. The jury failed to agree.

Good Enough.—The Times evidently believes that the mass of its readers are of that class who allow others to think for them; and hence its frequent parade of great names in favor of the ratification by the South of the recent legislation of Congress.

Yesterday morning, under the head of "good enough," it gave a list of late confederate generals, who it says, "approve"—mark the language—"approve" the Sherman reconstruction bill.

Among these is Gen. Lee, who has not expressed an opinion at all, nor given advice, and whose political views, as is distinctly stated in a communication republished in the same issue of the Times, are unknown.

Gen. Breckinridge heads the list:—will the Times give its authority for claiming him as approving the Sherman bill? His name was used in this way by some of the precipitation organs before he could have heard of the passage of that bill; and we deny that he has expressed such views, as attributed to him.

Major Gen. Ethel Barksdale occupies a prominent place in the list of the Times. There was but one Gen. Barksdale in the Confederate Army, and he fell at Gettysburg, with his back to the field and his feet to the foe—fell covered with glory at the head of his charging column—fell there, and made his one of the few, the immortal names that were not born to die. The Mr. Barksdale who, for effect, is dubbed Major General by the Times, is, we presume, the editor of the Mississippi Clarion, a very worthy and respectable gentleman, and during the war a member of the Confederate Congress, but never a general.

Others of the distinguished gentlemen cited by the Times as approving the recent acts for the radicalization of the South, have not, we have reason to believe, expressed any opinion; and still others, very respectable generals, are very poor statesmen certainly, and their political opinions are worth no more than the military views of the village politicians would be.

It is announced on the authority of one of the officers of the Bank of England that in all its dealings with the United States the bank has never lost a cent by an American. The largest note ever discounted by this bank, was a piece of paper for $4,000,000 in gold.

The richest negro in Philadelphia is Stephen Smith, a lumber merchant. He owns seventy-five houses in fee simple, and is worth not less than $300,000. Mrs. Devers has taken the old Harrison Hotel, and we understand that it will be in full blast as soon as Craigmyle takes his place in the office.

C. Carpenter & Bro., have received the contract for building a new banking house in Cynthiana. We understand that they are to finish the building by the 1st of November, for $16,000. It will be a beautiful stone front two stories high.

Next Friday, the circus will be in Cynthiana, and a good time generally is anticipated by the circus-going people. Harrison county, April 27, '67. Mr. Morey:—Sir, I received a letter from G. W. McKim, stating that Mrs. Watters of Boone county, Ky., gave birth to four boys, about a year ago, and they are all living and hearty. She is the mother of three more and is a friend of the "faithful."

Lost—On Thursday night last, between the residences of Judge Curry and I. T. Martin, a clasp purse, containing thirty-one dollars and a half in greenbacks, and a note of hand payable to Miss Jult. Woolyard, for four hundred and eighty-two dollars and nineteen cents. We hope the finder of this purse will feel it a duty to return it to Miss Woolyard, as it comprises her entire worldly estate. The finder will be liberally rewarded.

On last Sunday morning, Mr. David Metcalf, of Jacksonville, Bourbon county, a very respectable citizen, visited his friend, Mr. Smith, a near neighbor, and on his return home stopped in his front yard, and hung himself to a locust tree, in the presence of his family, consisting of five little girls. The screams and cries of the little ones, brought the neighbors in, but too late to save him. We have not learned the cause of the rash act.

The execution of Jno. Curry, on Friday next, for the murder of his father Nick Broadwell, has been suspended by the Court of Appeals, until his appeal from the judgment of the criminal court, refusing him a new trial, can be had. If the court of Appeals reverse the decision of Judge Arthur, the case will again be tried in the criminal court next September. If, on the other hand, they affirm the decision of our criminal court, the Governor, will immediately appoint a day for the execution, and send the death-warrant to the Sheriff, which, in all probability, will take place sometime in June.

Kentontown, April 23, '67.

Mr. Editor:—

There came to this place, yesterday morning, about 6 o'clock, a genteel looking young man, and remained about the store of A. J. Ashcraft, until 12 o'clock, when he left and went behind a small house near by, and shot himself with a pistol in the right ear. He lived until about 12 o'clock last night. He left nothing by which we can ascertain who he is or where he came from. There was a paper in his carpet sack with the names of Dunkirk, Westville, Kingsville, Danville, Cleveland, Grafton, Cynthiana, Flemingsburg, and several other places that I could not make out. There was the name of H. E. Boswell, written with a pencil on a paper collar box. He got his breakfast below this place. While they were preparing his breakfast, he was engaged in reading the Bible, and was seen near here in a fence corner reading the Bible. He made enquiries of several persons how far it was to Flemingsburg. He is about 5 feet 3 or 10 inches high, dark hair, blue eyes. He told young Ashcraft that he lived about 50 miles from here. He looks to be about 22 or 23 years old. I sent a list of the articles to the clerk's office. I would be glad that you would publish this, with a request that the Cincinnati and Maysville papers will also give it an insertion. He may have friends that would like to know what had become of him. Yours truly,

Duncan Harding.

According to previous notice, the young ladies and gentlemen of this section observed Friday the 26th inst. by improving and embellishing the graves of our friends who fell in the "lost cause." The day was pleasant, and the meeting agreeable. Flowers, at this season of the year, are not very plentiful, in this region, yet, a very fair display was made and each grave received a good supply of flowers and proper attention:

"Bring flowers to crown the cup and lute.
Bring flowers, the bride is near;
Bring flowers to soothe the captive's cell,
Bring flowers to strew the bier!"

Such as were to be had, were devoted freely to our friends, who have "gone to that other and better world."

The ladies, God bless them, were there, and well did they perform their part. They have, at all times, been foremost in all good acts, and too much cannot be said in their praise. The assertion "that woman was the best gift of God to man," is a truth, which is seen and learned in our everyday life, and her influence is perceptible in all that tends towards making our sojourn here pleasant and tolerable.

"The world was sad—the garden was a wild,
And man, the hermit, sighed—till woman smiled."

The following named ladies and little misses, were at the cemetery:

The Misses Neal Woodyard, Julia Woodyard, Sue Woodyard, Lizzie Martin, Nanrie Anderson, of Leesburg, Bettie Frazer, Maggie and Julia Beal, Annie Day, Lizzie Woodward, Nellie Frazer, Ida Withers, Jennie Oxley, Laura Estep, of Covington, Ada and Ann Desha, Miss Beck Anderson, Miss Rutherford and Mrs. N. E. Gribbon.

The following gentlemen were in attendance:

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

BLUE GRASS FARM

FOR SALE.

THE Farm on which I now reside is for sale. It is situated four miles south of Cynthiana, half a mile from Lair's Station, on the K. C. R. R., at which point there is a post office, express office, depot, saw mill and two excellent grist mills that manufacture the best quality of flour and meal. It is within 3 hours ride of Cincinnati and 1½ of Lexington. It contains about 175 acres, one hundred acres well timbered. The remainder cleared and in the highest state of cultivation. The fencing all in good order. The improvements consist of a comfortable dwelling, partly frame and partly log, weatherboarded and plastered and painted, containing six rooms, kitchen, and all necessary out buildings, including two large stables, (with lofts for feed) large enough to hold and feed 75 mules at a time which can be done without going out of doors, as there is large wide feed rooms extending the whole length of the stables, in which there is a cutting box run by horse power, with capacity and strength enough to cut a large quantity of provender in a short time. There is also a young orchard of select fruit of various kind now bearing. The farm is supplied with abundance of pure water for all purposes, as there is upon it a number of never failing springs (some of them near the dwelling) and South Licking which runs along one side of it. Any one wishing to purchase such a farm, would do well to call and examine for themselves. The place will be sold for a reasonable price, the payment made easy, and if desired a part of the money can be run a considerable length of time at moderate interest.

I also desire to sell 400 acres of land which lies in Lewis county, Missouri. Said land is situated about 12 miles from Palmyra on the road leading from there to Monticello, and about 16 miles from the Mississippi river, about one half of it timbered and the other excellent, the balance prairie of good quality, a little rolling and dry, is in a good neighborhood, and is surrounded by old settlers and finely improved farms. There is a large handsome brick church and school house in sight of the land. Also, a small village and post office near by. Price reasonable, payments easy and made to suit the ability and convenience of purchasers. For further particulars call on

LYON'S PERIODICAL DROPS!

The Great Female Remedy for Irregularities!!!

I HAVE tested these Drops in my own practice, over ten years, and do not hesitate to say that nothing has yet been developed by medical research, that acts so powerfully, positively and harmlessly, in cases of female irregularity, as does this medicine. In all recent cases it never fails, while thousands who have long suffered, are indebted to it for the boon of health to-day. Although so powerful and positive, they perfectly harmless, and may be used at all times, except when specially forbidden in the directions. They have been extensively employed by eminent physicians in France and England, as well as in my own practice, over ten years, and I have yet to hear of the first instance of failure. I could give you testimonials of their efficacy from ladies all over the Northern and North Western States, were they not in their nature, private. Over 100,

Throw away those frizzes, switches, &c. Destructive of comfort, and not worth a fig. Come aged, come youthful, ugly and fair, and rejoice in your own luxuriant hair.
Reparator Capilli, for restoring the hair upon bald heads (from whatever cause it may have fallen out) and forcing a growth of hair upon the face, it has no equal. It will force the beard to grow upon the smoothest face in from five to eight weeks, or hair upon bald heads in from two to three months. A few ignorant practitioners have asserted that there is nothing that will force or hasten the growth of hair or beard. Their assertions are false, as thousands of living witnesses (from their own experience) can bear witness. But many will say, how can we distinguish the genuine from the spurious? It is difficult, as nine-tenths of the different preparations advertised for the hair and beard are entirely worthless, and you may have already thrown away large amounts in their purchase. To such we would say, try the Reparator Capilli; it will cost you nothing unless it really comes up to our representations. If your druggists does not keep it, send me a dollar and we will forward it, post-paid, together with a receipt for the money, which will be returned to you on application, provided entire satisfaction is not given. ASTROLOGY.

THE WORLD ASTONISHED.
At the wonderful revelations made by the great astrologist, Madame H. A. Ferrigno, she reveals secrets no mortal ever knew. She restores to happiness those who, from doleful events, catastrophes, crosses in love, loss of relations and friends, loss of money, &c., have become despondent. She brings together those long separated, gives information concerning absent friends or lovers, restores lost or stolen property, tells you the business you are best qualified to pursue, and to what you will be most successful, causes speedy marriages and tells you the very day you will marry, gives you the name, likeness and characteristics of the person. She reads your very thoughts, and by her almost supernatural powers unveils the dark and hidden mysteries of the future. From the stars we see in the firmament—the malefic stars that overcloud or predominate in the configuration—from the aspects and position of the planets and the fixed stars in the heavens at the time of birth, she deduces the future destiny of man. Fail not to consult the greatest astrologist on earth. It costs you but a trifle, and you may never again have so favorable an opportunity. Consultation free with likeness and all desired information. Parties living at a distance can consult the Madame by mail with equal safety and satisfaction to themselves, as if in person. A full and explicit chart, written out, with all inquiries answered and likeness enclosed, sent by mail on receipt of price above mentioned. The strictest secrecy will be maintained, and all correspondence returned or destroyed. References of the highest order furnished those desiring them. Write plainly the day of the month and year in which you were born, enclosing a small lock of hair. Address, Madame H. A. Ferrigno, P. O. drawer 293, Buffalo, N. Y.

WEBSTER & HODGES.

A young lady returning to her country home, after a sojourn of a few months in the city, was hardly recognized by her friends. In place of a coarse, rustic, flushed face, she had a soft, ruddy complexion of almost marble smoothness, and instead of twenty-three she really appeared that or eighteen. Upon inquiry as to the cause of so great a change, she plainly told them that she used Croscian's Balm, and considered it an invaluable acquisition to any lady's toilet. By its use any lady or gentleman can improve their personal appearance an hundred fold. It is simple in its combinations, as nature herself is simple, yet unsurpassed in its efficacy in drawing impurities from, also healing, cleansing and beautifying the skin and complexion. By its direct action on the cuticle it draws from it its impurities, kindly healing the same, and leaving the surface as nature intended it should be, clear, soft, smooth and beautiful. Price $1, sent by mail or express, on receipt of an order, by W. L. Clark & Co., Chemists, No. 3 West Fayette street, Syracuse, N. Y. The only American agents for the sale of the same.
